In fact, if you are reading this article the odds are that you are interested in working online. So, the question I put to you, is it such an endeavor lucrative?

The first thing that we need to consider is what we mean when talk about working from home. Day traders work online, but trading stocks is not the type of activity that I am referring to here. When I talk about working online, I am talking about doing things like blogging and operating websites from which you make money.

There are all sorts of ways to make money online, but I am just going to focus on the one-man operations, the people who typically own a website. Do these people make a lot of money? The short answer is: It Depends.

For the top earners in the profession, internet marketing can be very lucrative. Some people who own popular websites that provide a service or sell a product make over a million dollars a year. But this is not typical. Most people who try to make a living online quit before ever earning more than a thousand dollars. That is just the reality of the matter. But, those who do stick out, sometimes end up making a very nice living working from home on their computers.

How much can a typical person make?

A hard working internet marketer can make around $50,000 a month if they are skillful and savvy. But, like I said, most never approach these levels of earnings. Nevertheless, the lure of making that much draws many people into the fold. To take advantage of such people there are internet marketers who sell products that claim to teach people how to make money online. I have bought a few of these products in my time and I never learned how to make a lot of money from them.
